Law Firms Brown & Sheehan and Venable Form Strategic Alliance

Alliance struck between rising minority-owned firm and established AmLaw 100 firm represents new approach to help law firms increase diversity, share mutual business

Washington, DC/Baltimore, MD (January 4, 2006) – As part of an ongoing commitment to promote diversity efforts in the legal community, Brown & Sheehan, LLP, the largest Minority Business Enterprise law firm in Maryland, and Venable LLP, an AmLaw 100 law firm, have forged a strategic alliance to further provide clients with a diverse pool of legal professionals and high-quality legal services, as well as to reinforce ties within the region.

The new, shared business platform is one of only a few such alliances in the legal industry and the largest in the Mid-Atlantic. Brown & Sheehan and Venable will maintain their separate identities and independence, but will also work as co-counsel on specifically identified litigation, labor and employment, public finance, business transactions, and real estate matters.

Brown & Sheehan, which was established in 2004, and continues the seven year practice of a prior firm formed in 1997, is a respected minority-owned firm that has quickly made its mark in the Maryland Bar. The alliance is designed to assist both firms in meeting designated client service needs, while providing quality legal work. Washington-based Venable, which is also one of the oldest and largest firms in Baltimore, has long been a leader in its commitment to diversity, building a diverse group of attorneys and staff who reflect not only the diversity of the communities in which they practice but also the clients they serve.

The goal of the alliance is to provide a broad range of clients with the highest quality of service from lawyers with diverse backgrounds.

"Minorities in the legal profession have traditionally been faced with two options: join a large law firm and risk becoming marginalized or join a smaller minority-owned firm and risk missing out on major career opportunities and the chance to work on substantive matters," said Michael A. Brown, name partner at Brown & Sheehan. "Our new alliance gives our associates the best of both worlds."

"As a firm, we have long aspired to the highest standards of diversity," said Venable's Managing Partner James L. Shea. "We know Brown & Sheehan and feel that our new alliance will be able to better service the needs of our clients."

The arrangement also provides the 460-attorney Venable, which has offices in Maryland, Virginia and New York, the benefit of Brown & Sheehan's wealth of legal experience, particularly in the public finance and litigation areas. The alliance, in turn, provides the 13-attorney Brown & Sheehan access, on specific designated matters, to Venable's national practice, legal resources and strategic business units, including government contracts, healthcare, homeland security and legislative affairs.

"This alliance gives our firm the luxury of working on larger and higher-profile matters that we would not normally attract because of our size, and at the same time provides Venable access to work and perspective it would not normally receive," said David M. Sheehan, founding partner of Brown & Sheehan. "Venable's broader practice allows us to take on larger pieces of work from clients. And our experience with the City of Baltimore and State of Maryland will serve to further strengthen Venable's links in the region."

"In a very short time, Brown & Sheehan has proven to be a rising star of the Maryland legal community," said Robert A. Shelton, one of the Venable partners serving as co-head of the alliance. "When we considered the idea of a strategic alliance, we felt that we needed a strong firm with which we can work to provide an excellent level of legal services. Brown & Sheehan fits the bill."

Brown & Sheehan brings four partners, eight associates and one of counsel member to the Alliance. Although officially founded in early 2004, the firm can trace its roots back to 1996, when Mr. Brown started his own practice. The firm boasts former assistant attorney generals for the State of Maryland, solicitors for the City of Baltimore and law clerks for local and state courts on staff. Partner Martin F. Cadogan serves as campaign treasurer for Baltimore Mayor Martin O'Malley. Mr. Brown chaired Mayor O'Malley's Transition Team for Public Safety.

"We are already working together to introduce the alliance to our clients and anticipate the alliance will bring new business to both of our firms," said Vicki Margolis, the chair of Venable's Patent Litigation Group, who is also one of the co-heads of the alliance.
